A series of exclusive software developed to help you to keep track of all the data saved on the desktop and grab screen recordings with a click on the mouse. BastaPix Features: - Screen recording/taking snapshots - Magnifying and zoom - Color display of active desktop areas - Free shaping of the area to take a screen snapshot or snapshot of a specific window - Screenshot of the active desktop screen or specific window - Selectable grid to help in the precision of measurements - Screen recording with automatic output in different formats - Screen recording/taking screenshots of an area or window selection - Export of the recorded video in different formats (AVI, DVD, WMV, MP4, FLV, GIF, JPG, PDF, TIFF, Flash SWF, HTML, XLS, BMP, CGM, ZIP) - Color recognition of all active desktop areas - Color display of all active windows - The main window is easy to customize with different functions - The tools are tiny and the interface provides a screen recording feature LITERALLY everything you want is included in this application. The software actually includes OVER 150 tools in its interface. Over 150 different features are packed into this one little, simple, and easy to use interface. The video and audio recording feature is great. Record all your desktop activity and just click a button and you got a video you can use to make presentations. The recording capacity is unlimited and you can choose to not include any sound to just let you capture a plain video. The screen capture feature has a count system built in. You can stop capturing when the number of total captures reaches a certain cap. The quality of the recorded screen capture is very good. You can also take a screen capture of window instead of the whole desktop and also you can edit the window which you are capturing. I was able to resize the window that I captured in any size and also drag the window where you want it to be. You can take a screen capture of an area or a window that you select. This is useful when you want to grab the scene of a problem instead of only the whole screen. You can edit the captured screen capture, play video, save, display, and paste into word. The

"We believe that strong families are strong communities and that no one should live in fear because they don't speak a language and have no means of communicating with those who care about them," Ms. Mitchell said. The count is part of the U.N. agency's effort to help other United Nations organizations reach out to refugees in local communities around the world. Mr. Hastings said other immigrant workers in the United States, including Mexicans, had told him they did not know any Cantonese. Besides the food stamps, the local authorities will pay for an emergency interpreter, who will be there to translate and assist in legal and medical matters. In the course of providing humanitarian assistance, "we try to give them a basic set of things so they can be legal and productive members of society," Mr. Hastings said. With the help of other immigrant advocates and community groups, he added, the Immigrant Law Center will also reach out to the Chinese immigrants. "We feel their numbers are so low that they really need us to stay with them and to try to lead them in those numbers," Ms. Mitchell said. She said the center would pay for the interpreter for a year, paying for any follow
